Salaried:
$75,856.00 -
$84,507.00

Eligibility: External Vacancy - Open to Everyone

Location: ADELAIDE

Agency: Environment Protection Authority, Operations Directorate, Radiation Protection Branch

Closing Date:
27/11/2015

Agreement: South Australian Public Sector Wages Parity Enterprise Agreement: Salaried 2014

Duties: As a Radiation Protection Officer, you will work across sectors including diagnostic medical radiation, radiation health, radiation mining and radiation security. You will work as part of a team of specialists in order to protect the health and safety of people and the environment from the harmful effects of radiation. You will apply your knowledge of the diagnostic and broader medical uses of radiation, and your high level communication skills to establish effective working relationships and provide authoritative advice to industry, government and the community. You will ensure uses of radiation are managed safely and in accordance with the South Australian Legislation, and relevant National and International Standards. You will conduct inspections, audits and quality assurance tests of X-ray apparatus, and you will assess new and emerging technologies, and associated risks to people and the environment, and work with EPA management and stakeholders to develop and implement solutions.

Essential Qualifications: A degree in medical radiations (diagnostic radiography, nuclear medicine or radiation therapy), science or engineering or another related discipline.

Special Conditions: The successful candidate will be required to travel to sites in remote areas, in isolated areas/adverse conditions, and occasionally interstate. Some work out of hours may also be required, as the need arises. A current drivers licence is essential. The EPA is a smoke free workplace. The EPA is an equal opportunities employer. The EPA supports and actively encourages flexible working arrangements to enable its staff to effectively balance work and life. Such arrangement can be negotiated with your manager.
